Reviews:

“This Ruedo Verdejo comes from 60 year old bush vines, as this spent a few months aging on the lees before bottling. Cashew nut, green papaya and shades of honeydew melon all mark the nose. The palate is dense and salty with terrific terroir, weight, and tension. Delicious to consume now, enjoy over the next five years. Drink 2022-2027.” 92 Points OwenBargreen.com; Owen Bargreen - July 20, 2022

“The 2021 Verdejo “Egeo” is really a lovely example of this vastly underrated varietal. It offers up that grassy aromatic blend that recalls top flight sauvignon blanc, delivering scents of green apple, gooseberry, cut grass, salty soil tones, green olive and a topnote of orange blossoms. On the palate the wine is bright, medium-full and complex, with a fine core of fruit, good soil signature, good acids and a long, well-balanced and gently grassy finish. This is a fine example of Verdejo and a lovely alternative to Sancerre. 2022-2030.”

“This light-straw-colored wine has aromas of white peach and apricot. Summer stone fruit continues on the palate, joined by notes of lemon curd, vanilla and a hint of rose water that evaporate into a lemon-zest finish.” 90 points Wine Enthusiast; Mike Desimone - January / February 2023
